If you've ever been walking in the woods before a storm, the natural world is eerily silent! Birds also sing if the weather is improving. Birds singing in the rain indicates fair weather approaching. Here are more bird proverbs and prognostics. Enjoy! If crows fly in pairs, expect fine weather; a crow flying alone is a sign of foul weather.

When the pressure was lowered, the birds awoke and immediately began to feed, expecting bad weather challenges. There is no question that the migratory behavior of birds is affected by weather. The impetus to migrate is not the weather, although storms can delay departure and winds can slow or speed up the passage and even blow birds off course.

Can Birds Predict the Weather? - Ornithology

The height at which birds are flying isn't the only way you can use their actions to try and predict the weather. With a storm approaching, seagulls usually take a break from flying and seek refuge somewhere along the coast to wait the bad weather out. And all kinds of birds usually grow extremely quiet right before it begins to rain.

Your Questions Answered: Can Birds Predict the Weather?

Between nature's bounty and the mild weather, bird activity at seed feeders has been rather slow this fall. Those who feed the birds in their yard will likely see a big shift in bird behavior both before and during the storm. I frequently comment that wild birds are nature's barometer.

Changing weather changes bird behavior - Jay's Bird Barn

Similarly, when we simulated high pressure and cold weather associated with winds out of the north in the spring, the birds decreased their nocturnal migratory flight behaviour." Explore further

Until 2009, the oft-repeated claim that toads can anticipate earthquakes was without scientific study to back it up. That's when researchers in the U.K. followed the behavior of Bufo bufo toads (prevalent throughout Europe) over 29 days from before until after an earthquake in April 2009 in L'Aquila, Italy. The monitored toads, despite being almost 46 miles from the city, showed marked ...
